Project La Cena's Students

The students below have all expressed their interest in pursuing a Bachelors of Science in Nutrition and have contacted the Project Manager of La Cena.

At NLC, Jackie Viramontes would like to transfer to UTHSCSA, and was interested in receiving advising. Estefana Rodriguez is transferring to Texas State next semester and is applying for the $1,000 transfer student scholarship. Taylor Phelps is interested in the ACCD student scholarship and would like to transfer to UHSCSA. Arlene Halibian dropped by to get more information about Project La Cena and advising for next semester; she would like to transfer to UIW.

At SAC, Nicole Page called for advising to eventually transfer to UIW. Esau Sanchez has been in contact with the Project Manager for the ACCD Nutrition Student Scholarship, advising to transfer to UIW, and meets for weekly tutoring. Wayne Naumann inquired about the nutrition programs of different Universities and has decided that Texas State is the best fit for him and was also interested in advising and scholarships.

High Schools who want to help

Amanda Tharp (Nutrition and Food Science Teacher), and the counselors at Samuel Clemens; Celeste Windham and Hope Herrington (Family Consumer Science Teachers) from Steele; Sara Jurena and the SAISD chemistry department; and Rhonda Garrett (career counselor) and Carrie Hill (Nutrition and Food Science Teacher) from Judson, all met with the Project Manager to discuss the opportunities of Project La Cena for their students. The Project Manager also got to speak with seven different Nutrition and Culinary classes at Steele. Burbank, Houston, Judson, and Wagner have all made inquires for meeting next semester.
